The ClamDoor is THE New Alternative in Bulkheads

For more than 10 years, the ClamDoor has offered homeowners a superior alternative to traditional wooden or steel bulkhead doors that can need replacing every several years.

Inspired by watertight elements in nature and designed and developed with sailing technology, the ClamDoor is handcrafted in Rhode Island, USA with the care and expertise of master boat builders and in accordance with the tight specifications of high-performance racing boats and ocean cruisers.

The result is an elegant, lightweight and weathertight product, constructed of 100% fiberglass that is extremely durable and maintenance-free.

The ClamDoor retains its sleek, upscale appearance throughout the life of the product. The fiberglass will never rust, and the neutral grey, smooth gel coat finish never needs painting (but can easily be painted any color, if desired).

The ClamDoor is a single, fully-assembled unit that fits all standard openings, making it quick and easy to install. Its single, smooth-action door is quiet, safe, and secure, and feather-light to open and close.

The ClamDoor is energy-efficient and especially well-suited for coastal homes with weather concerns, as well as discerning homeowners anywhere who seek best-in-class materials and craftsmanship.

The ClamDoor is THE single bulkhead solution for the life of any home and comes with a 5-year warranty and our guarantee of satisfaction.

ClamDoor Details

The ClamDoor features a T-lock accessible from the outside of the door along with an exterior handle. Inside the door there are two heavy duty catches to lock the cover down to maintain its weather tight integrity.

There are two large air pistons that support the lid of the bulkhead door while open and a handle to close the door from the inside as well.

The hinges on the ClamDoor are made of galvanized steel to provide years of reliable service.

The lid of the ClamDoor is trimmed with a heavy duty weather seal gasket providing an excellent barrier from the elements.
